NORTHERN LIGHT PRAWNS

Produced at 69° 30' N,
in the land of the Northern Lights and the Midnight Sun

Coldwater prawns - or Pandalus borealis as they are called in Latin - are unique. 'Borealis' means northern and refers to the fact that these prawns come from far-northern waters where sea temperatures are between one and six degrees Celsius. Coldwater prawns are caught in clean, deep waters and have a quality and purity that few other products in the world can boast. Coldwater prawns taste great together with exotic spices in both hot and cold dishes.
